

How people can make EPM implementations successful

EPM deployment solutions

It's people that make EPM tick. So getting the most from them should be high on your list of EPM priorities. Think about the information that people will need and the skills that they will need to possess. Also, think about the various roles in an EPM environment and ensure that information and training is role-based and targeted to the correct people.

project solutions that make a difference

Effective consultancy solutions

We have a range of consultancy services to help your people understand EPM and what it can bring to your organization. We won't use management spin or jargon, just common-sense advice and best practice recommendations on making EPM work.

- Our Envisioning Workshop will help you understand the benefits and implications of EPM and help you decide your best way forward. Usually conducted in a single day, this workshop provides a straightforward and cost-effective introduction to Enterprise Project Management. As a result you will be much better equipped to realize EPM's benefits and also understand fully the implications EPM can have on your business.

- Roles and responsibilities are also very important in an EPM environment. We can help you look at who-does-what and how projects and programmes are impacted across the enterprise by different people and how those people need to interact and communicate with each other.

Customer-oriented training solutions

Our comprehensive range of training services will ensure that your people are equipped with the necessary skills to make EPM work for them. All our training courses can be delivered 'off-the-peg' via a public schedule, or you can look at bespoke training, based around your own business processes and procedures.

- Before your team embarks on implementing EPM, ensure they are fully trained! Although this may appear to be 'putting the cart before the horse', our extensive EPM experience has shown that project teams are better equipped to implement EPM in their organizations - if they first of all understand what EPM is about.

- Once you've started to implement EPM, a special kind of training is then required - training that is based around your organization's processes! Using our experience from many EPM training assignments we'll integrate your EPM processes within the training solution. What's more, we'll ensure that the training is targeted by role - ensuring all you team knows what EPM is about and (more importantly) what it means to them.